THE CAMPBELL PROGRAM

Campbell University is now the only college in North Carolina to offer a 4-year undergraduate Bachelor of Science in Homeland Security.

The Campbell University Homeland Security program provides the foundation and necessary academic work whether you are seeking a career as an officer in national security, law enforcement, or business. Our curriculum is designed to provide student with competencies in contemporary principles of National Security, Homeland Security, Emergency Management, Critical Infrastructure, Terrorism, Intelligence and Interagency Operations. The Homeland Security program's goal is to produce a graduate who is qualified for an entry-level position in the government and private sector.

The key areas of interest are:
Intelligence and Warning
Border and Transportation Security
Domestic Counterterrorism
Protecting Critical Infrastructure and Key Areas
Defending Against Catastrophic Threats
Emergency Preparedness & Response

THE CAMPBELL APPROACH

At Campbell, we balance course instruction between theory and practice. We use a variety of approaches to give you the theoretical and practical framework you need including labs, field trips, symposiums, and a required internship. A typical major class will have just 20 students; some have as little as 10, so there is an emphasis on careful discussion, analysis, and interaction.

THE CAMPBELL FACULTY

What sets Campbell's faculty apart from the others? Our faculty members comprise a wide range of expertise, teaching experience, and interests. Having earned multiple academic degrees, they have been well-schooled in the discipline. Additionally, they possess personal experience honed on the front lines — on the street, in the courtrooms, prisons, or juvenile centers. Plus the faculty is very involved in both regional and national groups related to this major.

We also charge ourselves with the responsibility of performing rigorous and thorough advisement of each student to ensure they get the courses and support needed to succeed.

Finally, the department sponsors a variety of different clubs, organizations, and/or honor societies to facilitate bringing our majors together professionally and socially.Finally, the department sponsors a variety of different clubs, organizations, and/or honor societies to facilitate bringing our majors together professionally and socially.

THE CAMPBELL STUDENT

We attract students who are analytical, motivated, and interested in pursuing careers in law enforcement, government, or private sector endeavors. Our Homeland Security majors typically work for government agencies, private security firms, the North Carolina SBI, State Police, local police departments, and the Department of Corrections.

The Homeland Security program concentrates on the goal of developing competent professionals who can respond to the challenge of crime appropriately and ethically in any level of government.
