THE CAMPBELL PROGRAM

The Social Work Department is a relatively new part of Campbell University's widely known School of Education. Our dynamic program is designed to prepare you for entry-level generalist practice in which you might work with individuals, families and groups, organizations, or entire communities.

About one-third of our majors pursue postgraduate studies; the vast majority are accepted by their first-choice school. For those who enter the job market immediately, our career placement record is especially strong: virtually all our majors have positions in their field when they graduate.

During your freshman and sophomore years, you'll take the liberal arts core, along with two Social Work (201 and 290) courses. You must also take basic biology, human biology, introduction to sociology and psychology, and a marriage and family course during the first two years. The majority of your social work courses are taken during your junior and senior years.

THE CAMPBELL APPROACH

We rely heavily on an integrated, interactive approach that emphasizes practical experience. For example, our Early Experience course gives you an opportunity to spend 65 hours during a semester in a human service agency. The setting will be chosen with your interest in mind: social services, mental health, nursing home/hospice, corrections, women's center, or other agency.

In addition, you'll complete a field internship or practicum your senior year in conjunction with a senior seminar. The practicum involves 450 hours of experience in an approved social work agency and features extensive field work by you. Once again, you'll be matched with your specific area of interest.

We also arrange a variety of visits to agencies and invite community leaders to bring their insight to you in the classroom. There's also an award-winning Social Work student organization that is actively involved in community and campus service projects. The program also has a social work honor society, Phi Alpha Eta Kappa Chapter for students who excel in academics.

THE CAMPBELL FACULTY AND STUDENTS

We take our teaching role quite seriously; we are also extremely active in our field off-campus. For instance, Department Chairman Dr. C.G. Kledaras holds leadership positions in the NC Society for Clinical Social Work, NASW-NC Chapter, and other professional and community organizations. Dr. Eugene Sumner joined the department in the fall of 2007 and is actively involved in handling the practicum placements for the program. Dr. Sumner is also heavily involved in community projects. Our students feel very close to the faculty and their fellow majors. There is a real sense of warmth in this department. There is also a desire among students to excel and to demonstrate how highly competitive Campbells program is with any other.

The student attracted to this major has a deep commitment to helping people. He or she is also a person who can assess a situation, provide a caring attitude, and has an openness to helping clients determine their own choices. That means ours students are tolerant of human differences and accept the rights of others to determine their choice. This tolerance and acceptance requires self-discipline, but they are basic to the ethics and values prescribed by our profession.

ACCREDITATION

We are proud that our program is nationally accredited by the Council on Social Work Education. The degree offered is Bachelor of Social Work.

The Campbell Advantage

Our students are extremely proud of their Campbell achievements and their Campbell preparation for a fulfilling career in Social Work. In this major at Campbell, you'll find:

- A respected, caring, friendly faculty determined to see that you have the skills, confidence, and experience you need to work in this highly satisfying career.
- A program that's unsurpassed at putting you in real world settings while you're learning so you can see which areas appeal — or don't appeal — to you before you launch your career.
- A distinctive dedication to quality liberal arts education, free enterprise, and our Christian Mission.
