THE CAMPBELL ROTC PROGRAM

There is a program at Campbell University that could give you an advantage when combined with your college education and diploma.

It is a course that not only teaches you the principles of management but also gives you the opportunity to lead. It is a course that tells future employers that you have had real life experience handling people and solving problems, that you are goal-oriented, and that you have been trained to work with and lead a team.

That program is Army ROTC. Put simply, it is your chance to add muscle to your college career. No matter what your major, ROTC gives you the confidence, skills and experience needed to be a success in college and beyond.

THE CAMPBELL BATTALION

The “Take charge and move out!” motto sums up what the Campbell Battalion is all about. Since 1972, Campbell Army ROTC has earned acclaim as one of the nation’s top ROTC programs. The reason we perform so well year after year is that we continually recruit outstanding students like you to join our ranks.

Here’s what we can offer you:

- Up to $20,000 a year for your education expenses.
- The best leadership training available
- An opportunity to serve your country

Here’s what is required of you:

- 1-9 hours of class per week (class dependent)
- Physical training 3-4 days per week
- One overnight field training exercise per semester

Our Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program is one of the finest in the country and includes Cadets from Methodist University, Fayetteville State University and The University of North Carolina at Pembroke. The Campbell Battalion commissioned 46 2nd Lieutenants this year, far exceeding its assigned mission of 28. This indicator of success demonstrates the program’s strength, as well as this generation’s commitment to serve their country as Army Officers.

CAMPBELL RANKING

Every year, Cadet Command provides each Professor of Military Science (PMS) an evaluation that compares their program to all other ROTC programs in the nation. Rated areas range from quality of recently commissioned cadets to viability of the program. These evaluations consistently show Campbell in the top 15% of all programs nationwide, which is the highest category rating.

The North Carolina Reserve Officers Association presents the General Maxwell D. Thurman Award to the top ROTC graduate each year. Campbell graduates earned this award in 1999, 2000, 2002, 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008.

Between their junior and senior years, all Cadets are evaluated at a four week summer course known as Warrior Forge. At the end of this course, each ROTC program is assessed on the performance of their Cadets. Over the past 14 years, the Cadets from Campbell Battalion have outperformed Cadets from all over the country. In 2009, Campbell Cadet’s average for overall performance was 12% higher than the Cadet command average. Eleven of our Cadets finished in the top five in their platoon and six cadets received the coveted “RECONDO” award for exceeding standards in all events.

Ranger Challenge is a varsity sport that tests the mental agility and physical endurance of participants as they compete against teams from other universities. Within our brigade (19 universities), Campbell has finished in the top three places nine times in the last 14 years. During that same time, Campbell took 1st place three times when competing in its region (101 schools).

The Campbell Advantage

As a member of Army ROTC at Campbell, you will find yourself training with one of the finest ROTC programs in the country. You will also find opportunities to become a leader on the Campbell campus. More benefits of our program include...

- An experienced faculty that is committed to teaching you the practical skills you need for success.
- Opportunities for overseas training and travel.
- Two, three and four year scholarships available to qualified students.
- A dedication to a quality liberal arts education, free enterprise and our Christian Mission.

MILITARY SCIENCE

The objective of the Army ROTC Program is to attract, motivate, and prepare selected students to serve as commissioned officers in the active or reserve components of the Army; to provide a practical understanding of the concepts and principles of military science; to develop a strong sense of duty, honor, country, and citizenship; to promote teamwork and individual fitness; and to develop an understanding of and an appreciation for international relations and national security. Attainment of these objectives prepares students for commissioning and establishes a solid foundation for their professional development and effective performance in the uniformed services or in civilian enterprise.

The Army ROTC Program is progressive in nature and is composed of a Basic and Advanced Course. Enrollment in the Basic Course is open to all full time freshmen and sophomores; its completion is a prerequisite for the Advanced Course application.

A student who enrolls in the Basic Course does not incur any obligation to serve in the Army. Prior military science or high school JROTC experience may result in direct Advanced Course placement. Entrance into the Advanced Course is selective and is based upon demonstrated performance and leadership potential. Students who satisfactorily complete the Advanced Course are commissioned Second Lieutenants upon graduation.

“Campbell University’s ROTC program separates itself from other programs with its commitment to its Cadets and constant work to ensure the success of all future leaders trained in this battalion.”

– Eric Prange, Class of 2011

“I chose Campbell’s ROTC program not only because of this programs reputation for excellence but also because my mom was commissioned from Campbell’s ROTC program in 1997, I saw first-hand what a successful program it really was.”

– Ashley Murray, Class of 2010

“I chose Campbell ROTC because the professionalism and leadership displayed by the Cadre and Cadets were unmatched. I wanted to learn from the best so that I could become the best.”

– Tony Lamboy, Class of 2010

“I chose Campbell’s ROTC program because I knew there was no other place in the country where i could find the dedication of Cadre. They pushed me to my limits and beyond. As I tackle the task ahead, I now know there is no task too great.”

– 2LT Eric Moton, Infantry Officer, Class of 2009
